

PODCAST/STREAMING SUGGESTION LIST

for

EDUX 7904: Implementing Educational Theory and Issues

Podcast/Streaming Recommendations:

- Let's K12 Better Join Amber and her kids at their kitchen table, where family discussions are fun and informative! Learn from experts and explore innovative ideas that push for more meaningful, equitable, and compassionate K12 learning experiences for kids, parents, and educators.
- Teachers On Fire Host Tim Cavey interviews fellow educators who are “on fire” in their profession — innovating, experimenting, and learning (and sometimes failing) alongside their students every day in order to become better teachers. Every episode offers practical tips on topics such as managing anxiety, regulating your emotions in the classroom, and fostering excitement for learning.
- MindShift From the Bay Area public broadcasting station KQED, MindShift examines the future of education, and how today’s educational policies, legislation, and social and political movements will impact tomorrow’s classrooms.
- Schooled This podcast provides boots-on-the-ground dispatches from Pennsylvania’s public school system, where more government dollars are spent per student than in any other U.S. state. The podcast aims to get to the bottom of why those funds aren’t working, and what needs to happen to make lasting positive change.
- Teaching in Higher Ed Podcast This podcast focuses on topics such as excellence in teaching, instructional design, open education, diversity and inclusion, productivity, creativity in teaching, educational technology, and blended learning.
- Tea for Teaching Podcast A series of informal discussions of innovative and effective practices in teaching and learning. This podcast series is hosted by John Kane (an economist) and Rebecca Mushtare (a graphic designer). John and Rebecca run the Center for Excellence in Learning and Teaching at the State University of New York at Oswego.
- Education for Love and Wisdom podcast Hosted by the Dean of the Vanguard University School of Education, Dr. Jeff Hittenberger, the Education for Love and Wisdom podcast tells the stories of people who are participating in education with love and wisdom. It also offers a vision that equips those called to teach and those who are otherwise engaged in education and civic life to participate with love and wisdom and overcome the temptations of fear, anger, and incivility. The episodes explore how education for love and wisdom looks, why it matters, and the difference it makes in the lives of students, families, and communities.